1. AFFILIATE MEMBERSHIP

The Casualty Actuarial Society in 1998 adopted a class of membership, Affiliate, to serve qualified actuaries who practice in the general insurance field and wish to be active in the CAS, but do not meet the qualifications to become an Associate or Fellow of the CAS. Affiliate Membership recognizes that the Affiliate Member has been granted professional status as an actuary by another actuarial organization and practices in the property/casualty field. To date 18 actuaries have been approved as CAS Affiliate Members.

Affiliates are governed by the CAS Constitution, Bylaws and Code of Professional Conduct, and are subject to CAS disciplinary procedures (documents may be viewed on the CAS Web Site). Practice rights are not granted to Affiliate Members; rather they must adhere to U.S., Canadian, or other nation specific qualification standards to determine eligibility to practice.

Affiliates are entitled to attend meetings and seminars of the CAS by paying the fees specified for members, participate at Society functions, and serve on CAS committees (except for Admissions and Board committees). Affiliates are assessed the same dues as Associates and Fellows.

Affiliates may submit papers to the Proceedings and the Forum. The Proceedings is the annual refereed publication of the CAS, while the Forum is a non-refereed journal which provides a means of immediate circulation of research papers. Affiliates receive all CAS publications including the Proceedings, Discussion Papers, Forum, Actuarial Review (a quarterly newsletter), Syllabus and Yearbook. They also are granted access to the Members Only section of the CAS Web Site (upon application for a password).

Additional information and an application form for Affiliate Membership are posted on the CAS Web Site (in the "About CAS" section at <http://www.casact.org/aboutcas/about.htm> ) or are available from the CAS Office.

2. NEW EXAMINATION STRUCTURE

A revised CAS examination structure was instituted in 2000. A CAS special task force in 1997 had assessed the current CAS education system to determine if any changes to the system were needed to educate the actuary of the future. The Board of Directors adopted the task force restructuring recommendations for a syllabus of seven Associate level exams and two additional exams for Fellowship. The first four preliminary actuarial exams are jointly administered with the Society of Actuaries.

A description of the new examination structure, schedule, and other details are available on the CAS Web Site ("Students' Corner" section) or by contacting the CAS Office. The next CAS exam sitting is during April 30-May 2, 2001 for Exams 5, 7 and 8. The Preliminary Actuarial Exams 1-4 are offered during May 16-24, 2001 and again during November 5-8, 2001. CAS Exams 6 and 9 will be administered during October 30-31, 2001.

Reduced examination fees are available to eligible candidates in qualifying countries. Additional information may be found on the CAS Web Site in the "Students Corner."
