Disciplinary Case Studies

-As previously stated the Academy publishes all of its public discipline and describes the violations on its Public Discipline page on the Academy website. This serves as a tool for members to understand what matters are considered to be violations of the Code.

-The ABCD also publishes general issues regarding trending Code violations that it has observed in its work in its column called “Up To Code” that is published in the Academy’s Contingencies magazine. These are also located on the ABCD homepage here http://www.abcdboard.org/. These articles assist actuaries to better understand what may constitute a violation of the Code.

-The Academy’s Council on Professionalism sponsors webinars on the Code and other professionalism issues. These include discussions on issues that may be considered potential Code violations by practicing actuaries.
